US policy assumptions in the March forecast

- A reduction in the statutory corporate income tax rate from 35% to 20%, partially offset by fewer tax credits, starting in 2018
 - No border adjustments
 - No expensing of capital expenditures
- Personal income tax reforms that lower the average effective federal tax rate from 20.7% to 19.7% in January 2018
- An increase in public infrastructure investments totaling USD250 billion over 10 years
- Federal Reserve policy rate increases of 75 basis points in 2017, 2018, and 2019, bringing the rate to a long-term equilibrium of 3%
- * - No noteworthy changes in April forecast

Changes to forecast since December update

- Higher manufacturing employment, production
 - State-level employment data revised higher for Indiana
 - National outlook has improved
 - Demand for durables is improving, especially from fixed business investment
 - Inventory over-hang has been mostly worked off, so more product needed to meet current demand
- U.S. corporate profits around 5% higher
 - Revenues about the same
 - Interest, wage expenses lower

With labor productivity rising, real GDP growth will outpace employment growth

Bottom line for Indiana

- Wage and salary income growth gets a boost from higher average wages, even as job growth slows, as productivity increases
- Manufacturing still has some room to grow, even as auto sales level off
 - Out-migration of jobs is an ongoing risks factor, while automation looms
- Continued increase in labor force is key to attracting and retaining employers and sustaining state economic growth
 - This is difficult for states with slow population growth
 - Achieved through in-migration and increased participation
- Service sector can be supported by strong education system, attractive business environment
 - High-tech sectors showing growth and innovation
 - Some sectors are dependent on local population growth as demand base
- As with all of our state forecasts, keeping an eye on policy developments at the national level

US Economy Appendix

US economic growth will strengthen by spring

- Consumer spending will increase at a moderate pace, sustained by robust gains in employment, real incomes, and household net worth.
- Business fixed investment will benefit from an improving tax and regulatory environment, along with a recovery in energy prices.
- With demand outpacing supply, homebuilding continues its slow recovery, even as interest rates rise.
- The revival in industrial production will gain momentum as the inventory correction nears completion in mid-2017.
- Fiscal stimulus, accelerating wages, and strengthening loan demand will lead to higher interest rates.
- In response to the dollar's appreciation, real import growth will outpace real export growth.

US economic growth rebounds in 2017 and 2018, as investment leads the way
